

Uncertainty Lite

Base rates, false clears, and why one warm reply is not a pattern. Clearance talk without fake stats PhD.

One sentence

Uncertainty literacy is how you keep DENY sacred and stop mistaking noise for Clear.

Confidence vs proof

- Confidence: how sure you feel. Cheap to inflate.
- Proof: what a stranger can reconstruct. Expensive and required for Clear.
- Soft-yes under panic is a failure mode - it converts uncertainty into fake may.

Base rates (operator honesty)

- Most cold outbound gets ignore. That is the base rate - design for it.
- A polite reply raises odds a little; it does not move the quit trigger.
- Paid deposit is a different species of event from 'interested'.
- Do not update your life plan on n=1 vibe. Update on money and reconstructable halt finds.

False Clear / false DENY

False Clear: GO without reconstructable LIVE proof - sticker theater.

False DENY: Halting forever because you refuse to measure. Also a failure - diligence exists to find real may-gaps, not to romanticize freeze.

Gate bias under uncertainty: prefer false DENY on the irreversible write over false Clear. Then use paid work to sharpen the real map.

Signals ranked (Friday)

- Tier 0: ignore / bounce - expected
- Tier 1: redirect to right seat - useful routing, not Clear
- Tier 2: substantive question on the write - engage async 8-9
- Tier 3: deposit paid - Clear for quit math
- Never promote Tier 1-2 into Tier 3 in your head

Sample size without cosplay

- 20-25 tight sends teach more than 40 sludge.
- After a batch: count deposits, not compliments.
- If zero deposits, change specificity of the irreversible write named - not your personality narrative.

Risk language with operators

- Say: where can the write complete without may?
- Say: stranger-openable receipt / halt artifact.
- Do not say: we eliminate all risk. You map and hold denial on a path.
- Do not invent percentages you did not measure.

Retrieval drill

- Confidence vs proof in one money example.
- Why one reply is not quit fuel.
- False Clear vs false DENY - which does Gate prefer on the wire, and why?
- Rank Friday signals Tier 0-3 from memory.

What this is not

- Not Bayesian textbook completionism
- Not permission to delay sends until you 'feel ready'
- Not vibes replacing Prefinality
